

Laboratory Pulping Unit

For producing pulp from various fibrous material at a time under specified and control condition under pressure, temperature and time. Produces pulp in a manner similar to a commercial digester. It is easy to operate and features precise control of the pulping variables, to ensure good repeatability of results. For laboratory production of chemical pulp. Provided with six autoclaves rotating in a polyglycol bath , heating and thermostat control.

